

City Gets Creative to Continue Delivery of Core Services

With COVID-19 wreaking havoc on virtually every aspect of life, City of Wilsonville employees have been identifying new ways to provide essential services to residents, vendors, clients and business operators.

Delivering core services safely and efficiently while building closures and social distancing measures remain in effect is a difficult, said City Manager Bryan Cosgrove. He believes the City's resiliency now may pay dividends when 'business as usual' resumes.

"Our successful economic recovery is going to be heavily dependent on our ability to respond quickly when opportunities become available to pursue new projects," Cosgrove said. "We have a responsibility to remain prepared and to keep Wilsonville working for everyone's benefit."

Staggered work schedules, videoconferencing and remote working have allowed employees to safely advance most Community Development initiatives without significant delays.

Creativity is also paying dividends in a restrictive and ever-changing environment. City employees are assuming new responsibilities, embracing new technologies, and innovating to provide the services people rely on. Here are just a few examples:

Special Deliveries

Picking up meals and prescriptions may be difficult or cause anxiety for older residents, or those at risk of complications from serious illness. To aid these residents, Wilsonville Police officers and SMART bus drivers have stepped in to help.

"Wilsonville has a significant population of those considered highest risk, and it is important to us to really help them avoid additional stress," explained Wilsonville Police Chief Robert Wurpes.

Wilsonville Police officers are hand-delivering prescriptions from local pharmacies (see page 5). SMART buses are supporting the Home Delivered Meals program at the Wilsonville Community Center, and also delivering groceries to Dial-a-Ride customers.

SMART has seen a 50% decrease in ridership since mid-March. The agency has reduced the frequency of many routes, providing available drivers to support the new service. Implementation wasn't easy.

"We've had to overcome limitations grocery stores have in payment options and delivery times," explained Transit Director Dwight Brashear, noting also that the programs required additional training and background checks to qualify drivers to make home

Mayor's Message

Working Together To Get Past This Unprecedented Crisis

Like cities everywhere, Wilsonville is responding to — and determining how to recover from — this unprecedented public health and economic crisis.

Our routines have been up-ended and we have been isolated from each other while experiencing fear, illness, loss, anxiety, financial strain, helplessness and a range of other emotions.

I am proud of the City's compassionate response. Our foremost goal has been to ensure the health and safety of community stakeholders. Our emergency response managers have acted quickly from the outset to ensure that we remain a step ahead and properly equipped to continue providing core services.

Amidst all the uncertainty that remains, we know this:

- Social distancing is working. The state's prompt "stay-at-home" order, hard as it may be, has helped Oregon achieve one of the nation's lower mortality rates.
- "Business as usual" may be months away. Public health officials caution that it will be a long while before our lives return to normal, even as businesses begin to open and guidelines are relaxed.

The burdens we are now enduring won't soon go away. We are only two months into a pandemic that may linger for months or even years.

I believe we must continue to deliver a measured response, informed by a desire to provide effective long-term answers to the challenges we face to keep our community safe and financially stable.

We are only two months into a pandemic that may linger for months or even years.

There are no quick fixes.

As things evolve, we will continue to rely on public health officials and our forward-thinking emergency response team for general guidance. Meanwhile, the City Council will utilize its experience and legislative influence to aid residents and business operators to the best of our diverse abilities.

We may be apart, but we are all in this together.

Let's continue to stay connected to one another via phone calls or social media, and look after those who may be most at-risk.

Continue to limit personal interactions, wash your hands and support non-profits that deliver services to those most in need.

More than ever, support Wilsonville businesses when you shop. The money you spend in our community stays in our community.

I'm inspired by the concern and collaboration I've seen Wilsonville demonstrate during this difficult time. I'm grateful to lead a community that cares.

Wilsonville Community Sharing Expects Need to Grow

Wilsonville's local food bank and social service resource hub, Wilsonville Community Sharing (WCS) lends a helping hand to neighbors in need.

As the financial impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic begin to burden those furloughed or laid off, operators at the non-profit brace for a wave of new clients.

"I'm starting to hear from families who never needed our services before," says Lani Snyder, WCS social worker. "People lost their jobs abruptly and frankly, they are worried."

WCS provides financial assistance to assist community members with rent, utility bills, car repairs, high-cost prescriptions and food from the Wilsonville Food Bank.

A satellite branch of the Oregon Food Bank, the Wilsonville Food Bank typically serves about 35 families — or 140 individuals — per week. A spike in clients threatens their already-stretched budget.

"I'm not sure how much support we can provide if needs are ongoing," said Leigh Crosby, food bank coordinator.

The City provides annual support to help WCS clients pay City utility bills. In April, the City Council earmarked up to $10,000 in additional funding for this program and approved an additional $50,000 for rent and non-City utility assistance.

The community is also answering the call for assistance. Long-time WCS sponsor Shawn O'Neil of O'Neil Law, LLC, doubled his law firm's annual contribution and utilized social media to challenge friends in the community to participate.

"WCS is on the front line for our community," he says. "Contributing to national or state-wide organizations is great, but this is a local charity with local volunteers designed to help local people."

City Purchases $20,000 in Gift Cards from Local Restaurants, Donates Cards to Residents in Need Experiencing Food Insecurity

Buy Local, Donate Gift Cards to Support #OneWilsonville COVID-19 Recovery Program

The City of Wilsonville's "One Wilsonville" Gift Card Purchase Program was established to support residents and restaurants throughout Wilsonville in need of financial relief in the wake of COVID-19.

In April, City employees visited local restaurants to purchase $20,000 in gift cards, providing a segment of our local business community with immediate and much-needed support in the wake of the State's 'stay at home' directive that has temporary closed doors and dining rooms, and diminished sales at retail establishments citywide.

All gift cards purchased by the City were routed to community members with dire need via Wilsonville Community Sharing and the Wilsonville Police Department.

"Our staff and elected officials have been working concurrently on several programs to serve residents and business operators who are suffering financially," said City Manager Bryan Cosgrove. "This one is unique in that it serves two groups with immediate need, and anyone in the community can join us in participating and supporting the Wilsonville community."

Participating is easy:

1. When you shop or grab take-out, support local businesses! The money you spend here stays here.
2. Show additional support and help businesses now by purchasing gift cards for future use.

3. Donate gift cards to friends, relatives, mentors, students, neighbors, teachers, fellow parishioners, colleagues, health care workers, store clerks or other community members in need of kindness (donations placed in City Hall's drive-thru utility bill drop will be distributed to Wilsonville Community Sharing).

The City purchased up to $500 in gift cards, in $25 increments, at a variety of restaurants that remain open daily for take-out and/or delivery service.

Assistance Programs Available to Residents Experiencing Dire Need

The worldwide public health crisis is being met with response from many public agencies, businesses and non-profits within Oregon who are seeking to provide assistance to residents with dire need.

New programs, relaxed payment restrictions and/or low- and reduced-cost services may help cushion the financial blow for those incurring medical bills or experiencing loss of income as a result of COVID-19.

Available public assistance programs are providing many of the following services:

- Employee Assistance
- Food and Sundries
- Internet Service
- Nutritional Assistance
- Rent / Mortgage Assistance
- Social Services
- Utility Assistance
- Wi-Fi and Phone Charging

The City has introduced a dedicated webpage that provides links to available COVID-19 social service programs. Visit ci.wilsonville.or.us/socialservices to learn more about these programs.

Learn More About Our Virtual Library Programs and Services

While the library building remains closed to the public, Library staff is available to assist with virtual program and service adaptations.

We encourage readers to learn more about our "Library @home" programs and services available online, including:

- "Stories to Go" and Toddler Time are now available online (YouTube, Facebook).
- Staff "Great Books" recommendations are also available (YouTube, Facebook)
- Downloadable e-books and e-audiobooks are available through Library2Go, CloudLibrary, and Tumblebooks, with more new titles on the way.
- Email and phone reference services for patrons during library hours.
- eCards for new library users to immediately access library online resources, including e-books, e-audiobooks, and LINCC online databases.
- Online movies and magazines, coming soon!
- Larger library presence on social media channels Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube

Temporary Changes in Place for Due Dates and Holds

To reduce the impact on library users while the building is closed, we've taken a number of steps:

- Due dates on all checked-out materials are being extended until at least two weeks after we re-open
- Pick-up dates for holds are being extended until at least one week after we re-open.

This means that library users can keep checked out items for the duration of the closure without accruing any overdue fines. Also, items on hold that were waiting for pickup when the library closed will still be on our shelves for library users to pick up for at least a week after we re-open.

For more information about LINCC policy changes, visit: LINCC.org

Library Updating Collections, Getting New Furniture

Library staff is taking advantage of an opportunity to clean up and refine collections throughout the building.

Staff are taking a thorough inventory of all library items to ensure that all items are in good condition and placed in the correct location.

We're also changing how some materials are sorted. Coming soon are new Picture Book topics and reader-friendly sections, like 'Travel' for travel guidebooks, in our adult non-fiction collection.

New furniture is scheduled to arrive soon to replace 20-year-old furniture.

When we do re-open, library users will discover a refreshed space and new collections waiting to be explored. We can't wait to see you.

City Council Advances $400,000 Small-Business Grant Program

At the April 20 meeting of the Wilsonville City Council, the Council adopted a program to provide $400,000 in immediate grant funding to aid small businesses financially impacted by the pandemic.

Wilsonville's Small Business COVID-19 Relief Grant Program provides financial assistance to a variety of small businesses that meet basic eligibility criteria. The program favors long-time operators, applicants certified as Minority/Women, Disadvantaged or Service Disabled Veteran business enterprises, facilities closed or restricted by the stay-at-home order, and those not yet awarded federal, state, county or other relief funds.

The application process, grant amounts and eligibility criteria were honed and adopted by City Council after an initial framework was established by a task force consisting of Wilsonville City Councilor Joann Linville, City Economic Development Manager Jordan Vance and Wilsonville Area Chamber of Commerce CEO Kevin O'Malley.

"We greatly appreciate the collegial and collaborative effort of Councilor Linville and Jordan Vance, whom we worked with for many hours to develop the proposal," said O'Malley during testimony delivered at the meeting. "It represents the very best example of what our City and Chamber can do when we work proactively to dialogue and craft possible solutions to help us drive economic prosperity for Wilsonville."

Grant applications were to be accepted, evaluated and scored in late April in order that funds may be distributed in early May.

The Wilsonville Small Business COVID-19 Relief Grant Program includes three funding tiers to accommodate a variety of small operators:

- Home-based business (28 grants @ $1,000 each): available to sole-proprietors and companies with 0-2 employees.
- Micro businesses (85 grants @ $2,000 each): available to businesses with 0-5 employees.
- Small business (43 grants @ $4,000 each): available to firms with 6-20 employees.

Additionally, three Wilsonville hotels located within Clackamas County were each awarded $10,000 grants, matching grants provided to three other Wilsonville hotels in Washington County by the Washington County Visitors Association hotel relief program.

This assistance is underwritten by reallocating funds from two areas:

- $200,000 in Urban Renewal Agency (URA) program-income funds provides 85 grants for businesses in health care/medical, construction, manufacturing, retail, services, distribution/warehousing.
- $200,000 in Transient Lodging Tax (TLT) general fund revenue provides the three hotel awards and

SMART Buses Getting Daily Hospital-Grade Disinfection

To maintain a safe environment for SMART passengers, the cleaning and disinfecting of vehicles remains a focus.

A hospital-grade disinfectant is used on all touch points daily, and vehicle interiors are fogged with disinfectant spray at the end of each service day. SMART Adjusts Route Schedules to Address Lower Demand

In April, SMART temporarily scaled back bus service and office hours in the wake of lower demand after the Governor's 'Stay at Home' order. All routes remain in operation; most are running less frequently. Overall, the changes equate to about a 25% reduction in services. See schedules at ridesmart.com/reduced1

"Conditions demanded that we reinvent ourselves," said Transit Director Dwight Brashear. "We looked at ridership and adapted with adjustments that avoid severely impacting the people who count on us."

The adjustments are allowing SMART drivers to aid at-risk community members with grocery pickup (see above) and Home Delivered Meals from the Community Center (see page 1).

“Several drivers were excited to contribute to a new program that helps vulnerable customers in the Wilsonville community.”

SMART has implemented other adaptations, including fogging the interior of each bus with a hospital-grade disinfectant. Drivers are wearing personal protective equipment, stopping only briefly for home deliveries, and using hand sanitizer and appropriate social distancing protocols.

Virtual Inspections

Getting Wilsonville’s commercial and residential structures ready for occupancy includes many steps, with several inspections along the way. Replacing a water heater might require one or two inspections; building a custom home from the ground up could require 40 inspections or more at various stages of construction.

To ensure employee safety and keep construction on schedule, some inspections have moved online.

“Our office performs 35 inspections on a busy day,” Building Official Dan Carlson explained. “Protecting staff and customers while keeping construction projects moving is mission critical.”

Using a smartphone or tablet, a contractor can show the fix to a building inspector, who can then approve or deny the work without actually visiting the site.

“Critical inspections – foundations, footings and framing – are still made in person but many re-inspections, after corrections are made, can now be completed virtually.” Carlson explained. “We intend to maintain the practice of using technology wherever possible to facilitate efficient project approvals.”

Moving On-Line

Operating and maintaining advanced technology services is allowing virtually every City department to service customers by phone or email during building closures.

With City building off limits to the general public, Information Services Director Andy Stone knew he had to develop nimble, proactive solutions to keep services going without interruption.

“For everyone that interacts with City staff in any capacity — residents, elected officials, vendors, clients, business — the goal is business as usual,” Stone said.

Stone and his Information Services team had the difficult task of developing an appropriate virtual solution for every City department, including groups unable to work remotely.

Sometimes just a simple tweak, like forwarding an office phone number to a cell phone, was needed. Other solutions, including moving City Council meetings to an online meeting platform on short notice, required a lot of trial and error.

With two Council sessions now under their belt using Zoom software, practices have been implemented to keep meetings productive, interactive and secure.

“Our last meeting included presentations from six different people and allowed for public comment,” Stone said.

This capability is allowing additional public meetings to resume, including the Planning Commission and the Development Review Board. Zoom has also been instrumental in allowing the City to conduct daily Emergency Management meetings and other critical meetings.

SMART drivers pick up meals at the Wilsonville Community Center to deliver to older adults receiving Home Delivered Meals.

Get in the Zone ... at Home

Technology is also allowing staff to resume popular programs temporarily halted by public closure of the Community Center and Library.

Brad Moore is a personal trainer, wellness coach, and leader of the “Bones and Balance” workout class and “Lighten Up” weight loss group at the Community Center. Many of his loyal fitness fanatics are accustomed to working out with Moore several times a week, some for many years.

“I need to take care of my peeps,” he explains, noting that most of his participants are between 67 and 70 years old. “They are the prime, at-risk demographic even though they are healthy and highly functional.”

Moore started filming short workouts and posting them on the City’s YouTube channel, to the delight of participants. The sessions don’t require special equipment and they match the intensity of his in-person workouts. He says they are providing a lift in mood and energy for those following along.

“I’m even getting better at filming them,” he laughed. Moore’s virtual workouts are available at: youtube.com/user/CityofWilsonville/featured.

The Library is using YouTube to post book reviews and “Stories on the Go,” a virtual version of the popular “StoryTime” performances. Additionally, Library staff are helping to educate patrons about the availability of virtual services, including downloadable e-reader and audiobook titles. To learn more about the Library’s virtual collection, visit wilsonvillelibrary.org/virtualuse.

Library staff records a “Great Books!” book review for the City’s YouTube channel.

City Summer Events Canceled

It’s with great sadness that the Wilsonville Parks & Recreation Department must announce the suspension of several scheduled summer events.

Public safety is the City’s first priority. Without adequate information about when physical distancing requirements may be relaxed, the City is canceling the following scheduled events:

- Wellness Fair
- Mother & Son Night Out
- Summer Block Party & BBQ

We are hoping to provide Movies in the Park with physical distancing modifications.

As you can imagine, we’re devastated, and keeping our fingers crossed that we may see you this fall. We miss you all.

POLICE CHIEF'S CORNER

Police COVID-19 Response Includes Delivery of Medical Prescriptions to At-Risk Residents

Like other public service agencies operating in unprecedented conditions, police departments have been required to adapt in order to keep our employees safe while continuing to protect and serve the community.

The Wilsonville Police Department is responding to many non-emergency calls with a call back to help determine if in-person contact is necessary. Social distancing, when possible, keeps our officers healthy and ready to respond to community needs.

Our officers are dispersing groups gathered in parks or other public spaces. Enforcement of the stay at home order consists primarily of reminding people that suspending all non-critical social contact outside your home remains the best way to avoid transmitting COVID-19.

In order to assist Wilsonville's most at-risk residents with social distancing, the Wilsonville Police Department has established a prescription pick-up and delivery service. As long as the Governor's order is in effect, police are available to pick up life-preserving prescription medications from Wilsonville pharmacies and deliver them to local homes.

If you are over 65 years of age, or have a serious medical condition that elevates your risk of serious illness, we encourage you to utilize the service by calling 503-682-1012 between 7 am and 5 pm, Monday through Thursday.

Callers must provide their name, address, phone number, date of birth, the prescription requested and the name of the pharmacy. To help us get prescriptions delivered efficiently, please remember to:

- Contact your pharmacy to order the prescription.

- Pre-pay for the prescription over the phone.
- Advise the pharmacy that the Wilsonville Police Department is picking up the prescription.
- Show valid identification when the officer arrives at your residence.

Our officers will arrive at homes in uniform, with identification, wearing personal protective equipment and maintaining social distancing for all deliveries.

We know things may be difficult, and we encourage you to check in on friends, neighbors and relatives who may be isolated, experiencing food insecurity, or experiencing distress. Many Clackamas County resources are detailed in these pages, and may provide help to those in need.

Let's continue to work together to keep the community safe and strong.

Experiencing Emotional Health Instability? Help is Available

Communities are feeling the weight of the COVID-19 crisis: financial burden, illness unemployment and confinement are just a few of the stressors that be affecting the emotional health of you or someone you love.

Local mental health professionals and public safety officials are bracing for an increase in depression, anxiety, violence, abuse, suicidal ideation and other mental health problems, and remind residents that help is a phone call away for anyone in critical danger.

"One priority is," said Wilsonville Police Chief Robert Wurpes. "Police officers are still responding to calls 24 hours a day, seven days a week. In an emergency we will be there."

Wurpes acknowledges that social distancing provides an obstacle for those who are checking in to gauge the mental health of friends or family members.

"Be creative in how you are checking in," Wurpes said. "Whether it's telephone, video chat or text, we encourage everyone to continue check in with the people you care about."

If you or someone you know is experiencing crisis, there are resources within Clackamas County to provide assistance.

Firefighters and Paramedics Wearing Sustainable Protective Equipment

To protect first responders and patients from exposure and spread of COVID-19, Tualatin Valley Fire & Rescue crews are wearing more sustainable personal protective equipment (PPE) on most medical calls.

Community members may see TVF&R firefighter medics and paramedics wearing ventilator masks, safety goggles, face shields, gloves, and Tyvek suits.

The decision to wear more sustainable PPE is a response to the uncertainty of medical supply chains. Making this transition helps preserve the PPE for the unknown duration of this pandemic. We appreciate the community's understanding.

If you see first responders wearing this PPE, rest assured that the person under the gear is still the same caring and professional firefighter medic or paramedic trained to help you or your loved one get the necessary medical attention they require.

Request for PPE Donations

Due to continued national medical supply shortages, TVF&R is encouraging residents and local businesses to consider donating new, unused PPE.

Firefighter medics and paramedics need to wear specific gear on medical calls to help prevent exposure and transmission of COVID-19. Replenishing supplies has been challenging, with vendors unable to keep up with unprecedented demand.

TVF&R is asking the public to consider donating new, unused PPE, including:

- Surgical masks
- N95 respirators and filters
- Other respirators (P100s, PAPRs)
- Face shields
- Splash shields
- Disposable medical gowns
- Tyvek suits
- Shoe booties/covers
- EMS gloves
- If you have any of these items available to donate, please email supply@tvfr.com and include a description of items and quantities. A pickup or delivery will be scheduled.

All donations are tax deductible; receipts can be provided upon request.

To help reduce the spread of COVID-19, please continue to follow the direction of health officials and the Governor's executive order. Learn more at govstatus.egov.com/OR-OHA-COVID-19

During May, Residents Can Opt-In to Community Satisfaction Survey

Every two years, the City funds a statistically-valid Community Survey to gauge resident opinions on a variety of topics.

The short survey checks the pulse of the community. Results allowing the City to measure resident attitudes that may change over time. Data can also be compared against results from more than 500 participating communities.

Community Survey
Online: May 8-22

Residents who received a post card from the National Research Center should complete the survey using the link provided.

From May 8 to May 22, the survey is being opened up for additional input from a larger cross-section of Wilsonville residents. To take the short survey, visit bit.ly/surveywilsonville2020.

For more information on the National Citizen Survey, contact Zoe Monahan, Assistant to the City Manager, 503-570-1503, monahan@ci.wilsonville.or.us.

City Council Not Expected to Pursue Parks Bond Measure for November 2020 Ballot

In March, the Parks Bond Task Force completed an exhaustive audit of potential new park development projects and forwarded to the City Council its unanimous recommendation to pursue a park-improvement package valued at $31 million on a future ballot measure.

In light of the ongoing COVID-19 community response and recovery, The City Council does intend to place the measure on the November 2020 ballot

The City Council remains committed to its goal of identifying opportunities to provide arts, culture and community amenities. When appropriate, the City Council and staff will revisit the inclusion of the bond measure on a future ballot.

For additional information, contact Mike McCarty, Parks and Recreation Director, at 503-570-1579, mccarty@ci.wilsonville.or.us.

Public Meetings in the COVID-19 Era: What to Know (Since You Can't Go)

With social distancing limiting public gatherings, Wilsonville's City Council has temporarily transitioned to virtual meetings.

Because capacity is limited to 10 people in the Council Chambers, the City is temporarily allowing in-person testimony only in contested cases.

The City recommends contacting the City Recorder (recorder@ci.wilsonville.or.us) to pursue one of two alternative methods to deliver testimony:

- Send written comments by 3 pm on the meeting date; comments are entered into public record.
- Schedule a virtual appearance during the meeting via videoconference.

Other City boards begin meeting virtually this month, including the Development Review Board, Panel A (May 11), the Planning Commission (May 13) and the Budget Committee (May 20-21).

All public meetings are listed on the City's online calendar at ci.wilsonville.or.us/meetings. Listings include agenda items, materials provided to board members by City staff and instructions to deliver public comment.

Meetings of the City Council, the Planning Commission and the Budget Committee air live on local cable systems as well as the City's YouTube channel.

May 19 Election Includes Ballot Measure To Limit Terms of Elected Officials

Clackamas County mailed primary election ballots on April 29.

The primary election, May 19, includes a local ballot measure that, if passed, would amend the Wilsonville City Charter to prohibit any person from serving as mayor, city councilor, or any combination of both, for more than 12 years in any 20-year period.

The measure would apply retroactively to all current City Council members, precluding Mayor Tim Knapp and Councilor Charlotte Lehan from seeking re-election in the near future.

A neutral explanatory statement about the ballot measure is posted in the voters' pamphlet.

At a February meeting, Four Council members expressed concerns about the potential effects of the measure, while one councilor spoke in favor. These comments can be viewed on the City's YouTube channel by visiting bit.ly/3bdxWD9

This year, Oregonians do not need a stamp to return their ballot, which makes every mailbox a dropbox.

The City's drop box at City Hall' is open around the clock until 8 pm on election night.

Notable Actions: City Boards and Commissions

City Council	Action	What it Means
April 6	The Council adopted a resolution to provide Wilsonville Community Sharing, a local non-profit, with up to $10,000 in additional funding	The funding is earmarked to assist families in need with the payment of City utility bills.
April 6	The Council also extended the City's local state of emergency declaration through the end of May.	The state of emergency declaration provides the City's Emergency Management staff with latitude to coordinate an effective response to mitigate the impacts of COVID-19.
April 6	The City Council adopted a resolution that adds two short-term capital projects to the Stormwater Master Plan.	This action allows the projects to be added to the Capital Improvement Program and the projects become eligible for Stormwater System Development Charge funding.
April 6	Council approved an amendment to the City code that temporarily loosens restrictions on properly-placed signs.	The temporary adjustment is a public safety measure to limit activities that might increase the likelihood of transmission of COVID-19.
March 16	The Council unanimously ratified a resolution declaring a local state of emergency.	The action allows staff to redirect funding for emergency use as needed, implement mutual aid agreements with other public agencies, suspending standard procurement procedures and make operational adjustments in the interest of public welfare.
March 16	Council re-elected Kristin Akervall as Council President.	Councilor Akervall will continue to serve as Council President through December 2020.

May 13: Public Hearing to Consider Equitable Housing Strategic Plan

On Wednesday, May 13, at 6 pm, the Wilsonville Planning Commission is holding a public hearing to consider whether to recommend that the Equitable Housing Strategic Plan be adopted by City Council.

The Equitable Housing Strategic Plan seeks to provide Wilsonville residents and employees housing opportunities for different household compositions, ages, and income ranges.

Building on an assessment of demographic trends, housing data, and stakeholder perceptions of housing cost and availability, the Plan identifies gaps that are currently present in Wilsonville's housing market, proposing several actions, both near-term and long-term, to help fill these gaps. The Plan also highlights a variety of funding sources the City could pursue to implement the proposed actions.

To provide public testimony: commenting by email is encouraged. Contact project manager Kimberly Rybold, 503-570-1583, rybold@ci.wilsonville.or.us.

The Equitable Housing Strategic Plan draft is available for review at ci.wilsonville.or.us/housing.

Building Safety Month: Pro Tips from Our Inspectors: Mr. Ditty & Mr. Bitty

May is Building Safety Month. Building codes and inspections help protect communities from a variety of disasters, such as fires, weather-related events, and structural problems.

Join the City's Building Division in celebrating the safety of Wilsonville's built environments. Each week during May, we are focusing on a different theme that emphasizes ways we make our community safer.

Building Inspector Mike Ditty and his bite-sized partner in safety, Inspector Bitty, are sharing information on the following topics:

- May 1-10: Disaster Preparedness
- May 11-17: Water Safety
- May 18-24: Resiliency. Sustainability. Innovation.
- May 25-31: Training the Next Generation

We want to hear from you! Visit our virtual City Hall at LetsTalkWilsonville.com. We will discuss each theme in-depth with a new page each week.

REMINDER: Backflow Prevention Assembly(s) Annual Test

Notice Date: March 5, 2020
 Due Date: May 31
 TRAC #: C421F4
 Service: 29799 SW Town Center Loop E
 Address: Wilsonville, OR 97070

See reverse side for your backflow assembly details

The new annual reminder notice sent to customers with backflow assemblies highlights key information.

Public Works Upgrades Backflow Assembly Testing Program

Water customers who own backflow assemblies will see changes in the City's testing program, which protects the water quality for Wilsonville residential and commercial customers in accordance with State law and the City Code (Chapter 3.1).

The City's Cross Connection/Backflow Prevention Program is utilizing a new, modernized database to more efficiently allocate staff.

Customers remain responsible for annual testing. A new-look reminder notice details how to schedule a test and explains why the City works hard to administer the program. A yellow box on the annual notice highlights the testing deadline and other important details.

The City is implementing an online system that allows certified assembly testers to enter inspection results into the City's backflow database using a unique TRAC # located on the notice. The TRAC # gives testers information about the assembly(s) at your location, such as make, model, and serial number, but does not identify individuals or provide contact information at the associated address.

While the City administers the program, annual testing must be scheduled with a State Certified Backflow Assembly Tester. A link to certified testers is included on the reminder notice.

When scheduling a test, provide your TRAC # and advise your tester that the City only accepts electronic test reports through the EcosConnect system. Paper reports are not accepted. After results are submitted, customers are provided a copy of results from tester.

The City of Wilsonville takes pride in administering this program to ensure high-quality drinking water for our community. Thank you for your compliance. To learn more, visit ci.wilsonville.or.us/backflow.

City Crews to Flush Water Mains; Rust-Colored Water May Appear

Wilsonville utility crews flush the City's water mains annually to scour out mineral deposits. This process ensures optimal water quality and helps to maintain the infrastructure by exercising hydrants, valves and blow-off assemblies.

Water flushed out of fire hydrants often appears to be orange or rust-colored. The discoloration, caused by iron deposits, is a normal occurrence. When the water moving through the main pipe and out the hydrant begins to run clear, it signals the crew to continue flushing at the next downstream location.

When flushing occurs, you may notice discolored water inside your home. Don't worry. This water has been fully disinfected and poses no public health risk.

If you observe discolored water, simply do the following:

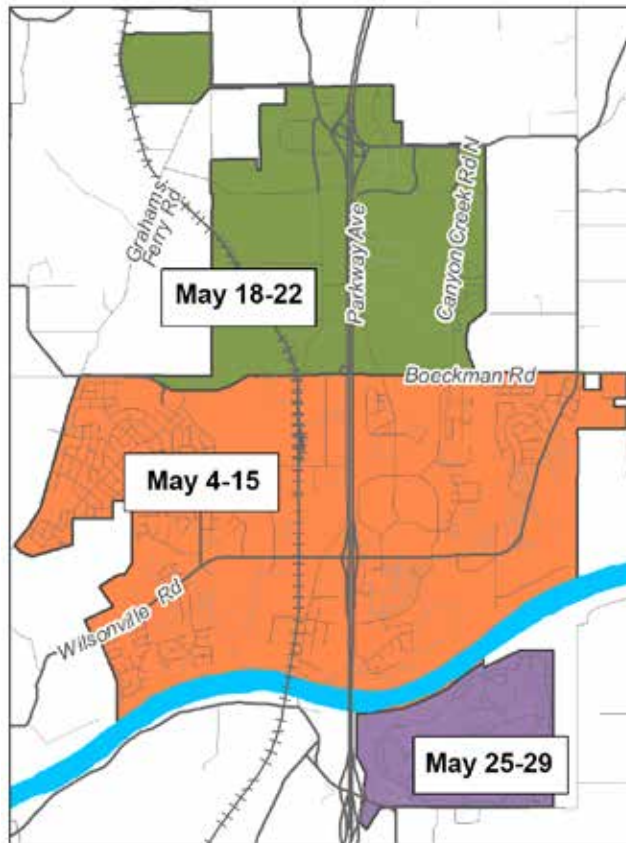

- Run your cold water fixtures for several minutes.
- Flush your toilets multiple times.

Water should run clear within a few minutes.

As long as discoloration persists, avoid washing whites; discolored water may cause items to stain.

Continue running cold water until the discoloration has cleared before washing light-colored laundry.

If you observe crews flushing in your area, please share the roadway to give them room to work safely. If you have any questions or concerns regarding the City's annual water main flushing, please call the Public Works Department at 503-570-4092.

The City's 2020 schedule for water main flushing:
 Zone 1 (orange), May 4-15;
 Zone 2 (green), May 18-22;
 Zone 3 (purple), May 25-29.

Oregon Tech Uses Spring Break to Make Protective Equipment for Area Hospitals

Oregon Institute of Technology mechanical engineering students Davia Fleming and Jacob Allemann were not spending their spring break taking a breather. Instead, they were improving safety for healthcare workers by using 3D print technology to create protective shields for frontline medical workers.

With some help from faculty members, the students produced more than 130 face shields. The students are also making valves through a 3D printing process that will be able to adapt/convert CPAP/BiPAP machines—commonly used to treat sleep apnea—into ventilators.

“We’re an engineering school, so I thought that there’s got to be something that we can do to help,” said Freeman, a senior at Oregon Tech’s Wilsonville campus. “I went online and researched what there were shortages of and found some Open Source software for making face shield visors using 3D printers.”

Oregon Tech was awarded a $10,000 grant from the Ford Family Foundation in Roseburg, Ore., “to support rapid response efforts to alleviate the hardships many rural families and organizations are experiencing as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.”

Recipients of these locally engineered products include Salem Hospital and Sky Lakes Medical Center (Klamath Falls) as well as Salem/Portland donation centers set up by the state to accept PPE donations for many healthcare professionals and agencies.

Additional information on Oregon Tech’s COVID-19 response is available at oit.edu/coronavirus.

Get Free Trees to Plant Near Streams

To promote healthy cool streams in Wilsonville, the City offers community members and local property owners up to five free native tree seedlings to plant on their property.

The City encourages planting along streams and other water bodies to reduce stream temperature and pollutants. The trees are obtained from a local nursery.

For more information and to get a tree coupon for five trees, contact Sarah Sand, Stormwater Management Coordinator, at 503-570-1552; sand@ci.wilsonville.or.us.

The City of Wilsonville looks forward to hosting its busy schedule of events once physical distancing modifications are no longer in place.

Water Features to Be Delayed

June 1 is typically opening day for the City's water features at Murase Plaza and Town Center Park. Unfortunately, the operation of these popular attractions is contingent upon the removal of the social distancing guidelines mandated by the State's stay-at-home order.

Once guidelines allow, and after Public Works crews complete annual maintenance, an open date will be announced on City's social media channels, the website, and the Water Feature Hotline at 503-685-6356.

Art Festival Plans Fall Celebration

Because of the COVID-19 health crisis, the Wilsonville Arts & Culture Council canceled the annual Wilsonville Festival of Art (WEA), previously scheduled for May 30-31.

Benjamin Mefford, the festival's director, is looking to the fall with hope. When announcing the cancellation, Mefford said the WACC board and the Charbonneau Art Association are pursuing an expanded Charbonneau Art Festival, October 23-25. The event would be a collaboration that combines select elements from both festivals.

"Thank you all for your support, and remember that making art can be good medicine," Mefford said.

In Wilsonville this free program is supported by the Wilsonville Public Library Foundation and generous donors. All Wilsonville children under 5 are eligible. Sign up at imaginationlibrary.com

Republic Services Postpones Bulky Waste Day, Adjusts Operations

Wilsonville's recycling and solid-waste hauler, Republic Services, is implementing temporary service adjustments to account for an expected increase in volume while working to ensure the safety of customers and employees during the COVID-19 crisis.

The Bulky Waste Day scheduled in May is to be rescheduled, and curbside bulky waste pickup is being temporarily suspended. The special free bulky waste pick-up program for seniors and ADA residents is also on hold. The new Metro-area commercial food-scrap collection program has been delayed until September 2020.

Residents are encouraged to take the following steps to maintain efficient residential pick-up service:

- Place carts curbside the night before collection day, as pickup may be earlier or later than normal. Work shifts are being staggered in the interest of employee safety.
- Please make sure carts are unblocked, and accessible for curbside pick-up with more vehicles now parking on residential streets.
- Please contain all garbage and recycling within the appropriate cart; extra items must be bagged
