

City of Wilsonville staffers Miranda Bateschell and Zach Weigel (standing) look over a main street plan drawn to scale by seventh graders at Meridian Creek Middle School. As part of their math curriculum, Meridian Creek students are learning about city planning. Their work is informing the City's plan for Wilsonville Town Center.

Meridian Creek Students Get Year-Long Lesson in City Planning

If you studied math in middle school, you may remember asking why on Earth you'd ever need it in the real world.

Kemble Schnell's seventh grade math students at Meridian Creek Middle School won't have to ask.

Their curriculum includes a lesson in city planning, in partnership with the Wilsonville Town Center project.

"Seventh grade students spend a lot of time with scale factors, ratios and proportions, so this is perfect,"

Schnell said. "Looking at maps, analyzing maps and then creating a map to scale. It helps students see how they can apply their learning to the world they live in."

Wilsonville planners visited three math classes in January to discuss their role and share the Wilsonville Town Center vision with about 80 students. The students were assigned to work groups and tasked to design a Town Center "main street," mindful of the same goals, restrictions and guidelines that planners must consider.

Should on-street parking be included? How wide should sidewalks be? What is the right mix of retail and residential space? Should the road include a bike lane?

"We had to use a lot of geometry and make measurements to see if our plan would actually work in a certain space," said Callan Keo, a Meridian Creek student.

The Town Center project team returned to Meridian Creek in February so that each group could present a plan for consideration.

"We want to meet the needs and desires of all members of the community," said Miranda Bateschell, planning manager for the City. "It's important for us to reach youth, especially with long-term planning. They'll enjoy the benefits longer than the rest of us."

Not surprisingly, many student plans included retail amenities designed for young shoppers — candy store, donut store, ice cream store — though less obvious themes also emerged.

"They had less concern for parking, even on-street parking," Bateschell said. "Instead, they used that space for trees down the median to create a greener, more pleasant walking environment."

Keo said his workgroup sought "a gathering place where everyone can come and be together."

Other groups had a similar desire.

"They all put in wide sidewalks, and almost all had some type of outdoor community gathering space," Bateschell said. "Students want places to gather where they don't have to spend money. They want to hang

City Seeks Vendors, Entertainers for Wellness Fair at Town Center Park

On July 14, the City of Wilsonville is hosting a Wellness Fair at Town Center Park. This community event, 9 am-1 pm, is free and open to all. Mark the date on your calendar, and join us for a healthy day of information, activities and entertainment.

Interested in being a vendor? In order to make this event a success, the City is seeking qualified vendors to participate — particularly those local businesses specializing in health and wellness industries. Apply online by April 30 for consideration. In lieu of a vendor fee, approved vendors are asked to make a minimum donation of $25 to Wilsonville Community Sharing.

Apply at www.wilsonvilleparksandrec.com/wellness-fair-vendors

Applicants will be notified by May 15. Vendors are not guaranteed exclusivity and are responsible for providing their own canopy (10'x10'), table (6'x8'), event staff, information, and giveaway items.

Interested in performing? Visit the link above to apply for a 30-minute slot. Please indicate what type of entertainment you and/or your group will be providing.

Mayor's Message

How Do We Get It All Done? It Starts with Great Volunteers

On behalf of the Wilsonville City Council and the greater community, I want to express our deep appreciation to the hundreds of community members who generously volunteer countless hours of their own time to help improve our community.

I'm amazed and appreciative that residents and employees of local businesses — people of all ages and backgrounds — are so willing to share so much time and effort to make Wilsonville a better place to live, work and enjoy. Thank you.

Community engagement inspires volunteerism. One reason that I believe people are so willing to help is because they are vested in Wilsonville's success — they genuinely enjoy working and living here. Of course, volunteering is also a great way to meet your neighbors, get exercise or bolster a college admission application.

Whatever your reason, the opportunities to support this community are everywhere. At the Library, volunteers perform a wide variety of tasks that improve the quality and expand the range of services. At the Community Center, they serve meals, deliver meals to homebound seniors, help prepare income taxes and assist seniors getting to medical appointments.

The people in positions of leadership on City boards and commissions are volunteers. Many get their start by participating in the City's Citizens Academy, a six-month-long program that provides a foundation of local government knowledge and prepares its graduates for continued service.

With spring's arrival, the City offers many opportunities for people to volunteer outdoors, including the upcoming Arbor Day Tree Planting on April 7 (see page 8) and the annual W.E.R.K. Day event on May 12 (see page 4), which attracts hundreds of community members to spread bark, rake debris and remove invasive plants to get our parks in shape for summer. Wilsonville Rotary volunteers and local businesses support this effort with a free warm-up breakfast. June's annual Wilsonville Festival of Arts at Town Center Park is yet another outdoor event made possible by the substantial contributions from hard-working volunteer art enthusiasts.

Volunteers really are critical to Wilsonville's success, and I look forward to thanking them more formally at our annual Volunteer Appreciation Dinner at the end of the month.

Join me in celebrating all of our volunteers who freely give their time to strengthen our community; if you're ever inclined to join them, we will welcome you with open arms. To learn more, visit www.ci.Wilsonville.or.us/Volunteer.

out in a space that feels like it was designed especially for them.”

Throughout the school year, the students will continue to engage with the project.

“They’ll choose a building among the different land-use types from our community design concept, design it, and make some calculations,” Bateschell said. “With apartments, for example, how many units can you build? What’s the square footage? How many people could live there? With retail and office, how many jobs can you support? What’s the square footage of the retail space?”

“Surface area and volume are big standards in seventh grade,” Schnell said. “This is a beautiful, authentic progression.”

Additionally, the project aligns well with the Wilsonville-West Linn School District’s theme of “Leading Together.”

“There’s been a lot of teamwork and community building with the students working with each other, listening to each other’s ideas and valuing each other’s opinions,” Schnell said. “They’re coming together, taking bits and pieces from one another, and learning to put it together as a whole group.”

Students are also getting a civics lesson in community engagement.

“I didn’t know what city planning was when I was in middle school,” Bateschell said. “This project is increasing students’ knowledge around community development. They are probably more likely to become engaged, and to think about the place they live and how it changes over time.”

Mission accomplished, Keo said.

“I think we really got to learn city planning, and how a city works,” he said. “We can appreciate what happens.”

Seeing Signs of Withdrawal? Someone Could Be In Crisis

Ask a simple question, says Wilsonville Police Sergeant Jason Ritter, and you just might provide a lifeline to someone suffering a mental health crisis. “Sometimes a simple ‘Hey, how are you doing?’ can open a door for someone to open up,” says Ritter, who is working on behalf of local law enforcement to combat the stigma often associated with mental health issues.

“Our society has gotten away from caring for one another,” Ritter said. “We’re too busy recording people rather than helping people.”

By discussing mental health, Ritter hopes he can help people more easily recognize when someone is in crisis, and lead them to the help they need.

“The number one thing to look for is someone withdrawing from things they love to do,” Ritter said. “They’re not going out with friends, their school work is declining, their work is declining and they’re preoccupied with other things. If you start seeing someone withdraw, it’s worth starting a conversation.”

You may have to be blunt, he warns.

“It’s strange if you’ve never asked someone ‘are you suicidal?’ because it can feel like you are violating a boundary,” Ritter said, “but I instruct people not to ask someone ‘are you going to hurt yourself?’ because they’re already hurting; suicide is a way to end the hurting.”

Though mental health issues are societal and can affect anyone, Ritter said teens and older, vulnerable adults tend to be more prone to suicidal thoughts. He wants the Wilsonville community to know there are resources available to help those in need.

“With youth, especially, there are programs like Lines for Life that offer juvenile counselors trained to text back and forth with teens who are suicidal or in crisis,” he said.

Ritter hopes raising awareness will empower people to intervene when they see anyone — themselves, a friend, a loved one, or even a stranger walking down the street — who may be in need of help.

“We want people to recognize what’s happening and know what resources are available to get people the help they need.”

SafeOregon Tip Line Supports Student Health, School Safety

Recent events have us thinking about school safety and what we can do to play our part. I have two kids, ages 10 and 12, so this issue is important to me personally and professionally.

I am happy to report that more than 80 Clackamas County schools, including those in Wilsonville, are now signed up with the SafeOregon School Safety Tip Line. SafeOregon provides several channels for students and others to anonymously report information about potential threats, including bullying, self-harm and other concerns.

Tips can be submitted several ways:

- By email: tip@safeoregon.com
- By phone or text message: 844-472-3367
- Online: tips.safeoregon.com
- By using the Safe Oregon mobile app (available in Google Play or iTunes)

Clackamas County Sheriff Craig Roberts chairs the Oregon Task Force on School Safety, which recommended the establishment of a statewide tip line after model programs had shown success in Colorado and Michigan. The service debuted in Oregon last January at more than 700 schools.

Police Chief Rob Wurpes

SafeOregon technicians monitor incoming tips around the clock and forward them to suicide prevention, mental health crisis assistance, law enforcement and school officials as necessary.

Through the end of November, the system had processed 298 tips since its launch; most involved bullying or harassment. You can see detailed data at safeoregon.com/about/results.

We are grateful to Oregon State Police for helping make this ambitious idea a reality, and we are eager to spread the word to Wilsonville students and parents so that you can take advantage of this tool anytime to report activity or behavior that threatens or endangers any member of our community.

To learn more about the statewide tip line, visit safeoregon.com.

City, ODOT Open House Draws Strong Interest in Southbound I-5 Ramp-to-Ramp Solution

A March open house detailed findings of the I-5 Boone Bridge Congestion Study, a joint project of the City and the Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT).

ODOT planner Talia Jacobson told more than 30 community members in attendance that about 60 percent of vehicles entering I-5 southbound at Wilsonville Road exit at Charbonneau or Canby-Hubbard, contributing heavily to congestion, reduced speeds, accidents and increased travel times.

Nancy Kraushaar, Wilsonville’s Community Development Director, described the study’s recommended solution: an additional “ramp-to-ramp” lane that would begin at Wilsonville Road and extend south over the Boone Bridge to two exit lanes at the Canby-Hubbard exit.

The state would seek to couple this improvement with a future seismic upgrade of the Boone Bridge. The timeframe is 2028-2040, due to a large backlog of transportation projects and limited funds.

Attendees — and members of the Planning Commission who met afterward — expressed urgency.

Based on public interest in a near-term solution, ODOT is looking at the potential to restripe the existing Boone Bridge surface. However, Jacobson cautioned that drastically reducing southbound shoulders to create an additional lane may carry unacceptable safety risks.

The public may comment on the recommendations to the Planning Commission on April 11 and City Council on May 21. ODOT is also accepting public comment on the study, starting in early April. To weigh in or to learn more, visit: www.ci.Wilsonville.or.us/I-5BooneBridge Wilsonville Mayor Tim Knapp addressed community members at a March 14 open house hosted by the City and the Oregon Department of Transportation. The meeting included discussion of proposal to build a ramp-to-ramp lane on I-5 Southbound over the Boone Bridge to alleviate congestion and improve commute times.

Construction Underway to Add Third Stacking Lane at Wilsonville Road I-5 Southbound On-Ramp

A construction project to modify the I-5 southbound on-ramp at Wilsonville Road is now underway.

This agreement with the Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT), approved by City Council in October, adds a third stacking lane to the metered on-ramp to increase vehicle capacity. The additional lane for the on-ramp is designed to accommodate more vehicles that seek to merge onto I-5 while decreasing traffic congestion at the I-5/Wilsonville Road interchange area.

“When completed, the on-ramp will accommodate about 25 additional vehicles during the evening rush hour,” said Mike Ward, Civil Engineer. “Provided the project stays on schedule, construction should be substantially complete by the end of May.”

Construction of the third stacking lane is to be completed during off-peak hours in order to minimize the inconvenience to motorists in and around the Wilsonville Road/exit 283 interchange.

When completed, the on-ramp will accommodate about 25 additional vehicles during the evening rush hour.

At 7 pm each night, one lane of the current two-lane Wilsonville Road southbound on-ramp is closed; traffic enters the on-ramp in a single lane overnight until 6 a.m. on weekdays, 8 a.m. on Saturday or 9 a.m. on Sunday. The shoulder is closed for the duration of the project.

The project, estimated to cost approximately $700,000, is one of three congestion improvements designed to improve traffic flow and reduce congestion on Wilsonville Road between Boones Ferry Road and the I-5 interchange. The other two projects include lengthening the southbound Boones Ferry Road double left-turn lanes onto eastbound Wilsonville Road, which is complete; and reconstructing the southern, signalized entrance/exit to Old Town Square/Fred Meyer shopping center to include a second travel lane on northbound Boones Ferry Road between the exit/entrance and Wilsonville Road.

The Oregon legislature in 2017 directed ODOT to study the pros and cons of implementing rush-hour variable-rate tolling or value pricing on the Portland metro region's two primary north-south highway corridors as way to reduce traffic congestion and travel delays. Issues of concern that have been raised include impacts to non-highway arterials and social/financial equity, among others.

Optional Protection Programs Not Affiliated with City Services

When sorting through the mail, Wilsonville homeowners may come across direct mailers from independent organizations offering water and sewer line protection programs.

While these companies may provide a legitimate service for homeowners concerned about possible liability from any water or sewer line damage on their property, neither the businesses nor their programs are affiliated with or endorsed by the City.

While these programs appear similar to insurance, they are not regulated by the state Department of Consumer and Business Services.

“Ultimately, we want residents to make the decision that’s best for them.”

“Since Wilsonville is relatively new, with new utility installations, we don’t get too many calls from residents about these programs,” said Dan Carlson, Building Official. “When we do, we tell them they’ve received a paid advertisement from a private company and that they should seek a second opinion or get bids from other contractors if they have concerns.”

Residents are encouraged to refer to their homeowners policy or contact their insurance agent to learn more about their existing coverage. This makes it easier to make an informed decision about whether optional home services can provide additional peace of mind.

“Ultimately, we want residents to make the decision that’s best for them,” Carlson said.

Resources are available to review companies soliciting business, including the Oregon Dept. of Justice Consumer Protection Division (justice.oregon.gov/complaints), Oregon Department of Consumer and Business Services (www.oregon.gov/dCBS/consumer) and the Better Business Bureau (www.bbb.org).

Town Center Outreach Staff Hosts Spanish-Language Event at Wood Middle School

The Wilsonville Town Center project team’s quest to gather community input led them to Wood Middle School in early March for an evening meeting designed to inform and engage Spanish speakers and their families.

Last Phase of Charbonneau High-Priority Utility Repairs Underway

In Charbonneau, the last phase of high-priority utility repairs is underway to repair utility lines that are broken, partially collapsed or sagging.

These repairs, part of the 25-year Charbonneau Consolidated Improvement Plan to upgrade deficient infrastructure, were approved by City Council in August 2014.

The project includes repair of 1,500 feet of cracked and corroded storm pipe using the Cured-In-Place Pipe (CIPP) technique.

This efficient method, which inserts a resin-filled liner through the old pipe to create a new pipe inside of it, does generate noise and can emit a harmless odor. Where size or condition of failing pipelines does not allow for CIPP, an additional 2,500 feet of storm pipeline is being installed with open trench digging.

Additionally, manholes and catch basins are being upgraded to improve drainage and maintenance access. Pipes servicing individual properties are to be replaced within the roadway and access ports placed near roadway curbs.

Construction occurs weekdays, 7 am-5 pm, through July. Residents should expect daytime road closures in work areas, with normal traffic restored by 5 pm daily.

During active construction, the contractor is storing materials along the side of the roadway and/or in nearby parking areas. Residents retain driveway access and ongoing access for garbage service deliveries and emergency vehicles; they should plan for additional travel time and expect noise and dust from construction.

Interruption of utility services is not anticipated. There may be brief periods where residents are asked not to run appliances (including dishwasher, washing machine, shower, toilet) for a 2-3 hour period. Interruption of cable, phone and internet service is possible; in this event, the contractor would coordinate with service provider to restore service quickly.

Upon completion of high-priority repairs, more comprehensive replacement of deficient utilities within specific areas begins. The initial project begins next year at Old Farm Road and French Prairie Drive. For more information contact the City’s project manager, Zach Weigel, Capital Projects Engineering Manager, at 503-570-1565, weigel@ci.wilsonville.or.us. ’Tis the Season to Test Sprinkler Systems, Detect Residential Water Leaks

The City is beginning the annual recalculation of residential sewer usage, which is based on November-to-March water usage.

Indoor seasonal water usage — which typically doesn’t include irrigation, kids playing in the sprinklers, car washes and other summer activities — most accurately reflects typical residential water use and overall impact on the sewer system, so it is used to establish sewer usage for the following year.

Wilsonville’s tiered water rate structure encourages water conservation; higher rates are applied as consumption increases. From April to November, indoor seasonal water usage plus three additional units are billed at the base (Tier I) rate. Additional water usage is charged at a higher irrigation (Tier II) rate.

To avoid costly water leaks that can result from frozen pipes, tree roots or other causes, spring is a good time to become familiar with your home’s irrigation system.

Here are a few tips to help prepare:

- Perform a visual inspection of the sprinkler system and look for broken sprinkler heads, mushy lawn, pooling, or sprinkler heads that do not activate. All of these can be signs of a leak.

Spring has sprung. Has a leak? The City recommends that residents inspect irrigation systems before regular use. Early detection can lower water usage charges.

- Check irrigation timer settings. A common cause of high consumption is overwatering because of incorrect settings. Some systems, for example, reset to default settings after a power outage.
- Know your system! Knowing the intended usage compared to what is actually being used could help identify a leak or overuse.

- If a leak is suspected, contact a leak detection professional or plumber to pinpoint the problem and get it fixed right away. The City does not provide leak detection or repair services on private property.

City Council Proclaims "Soul'd Out Week," Awards Funding to Support A Cappella Choir's Trip to NYC

At the March 5 Wilsonville City Council meeting, the Council welcomed Soul'd Out, Wilsonville High School's a cappella choir, for a live performance to commemorate the choir's first-place finish at the International Championship of High School A Cappella (ICHSA) Northwest Semi-final in January.

Declaring March 5-11 as Soul'd Out Week, Mayor Tim Knapp read a proclamation recognizing the choir's success and congratulating the staff and students of the West Linn-Wilsonville School District. Afterward, Council unanimously approved a grant of $3,000 to support Soul'd Out's fundraising efforts to travel to New York City for the ICHSA Finals at Lincoln Center on April 20.

The Council also continued a public hearing until April 16 to adopt the 2017 Water Treatment Plant Master Plan Update as a subelement of the City's Comprehensive Plan and a Capital Improvement Project List for the Water Treatment Plant. The extra time allows staff to clarify the treatment plant's operations in context with citywide water-system planning.

During the work session prior to City Council, City staff provided additional information on the upcoming March 14 open-house event for the I-5 Boone Bridge Congestion Mitigation Study, detailing three alternatives for a ramp-to-ramp (auxiliary) lane that would extend southbound from Wilsonville Road to mitigate the bottleneck that has slowed traffic during peak evening hours (see page 4). Additionally, the Council reviewed property-tax exemption requests for five multi-family housing developments that offer subsidized rent to qualifying families, seniors and individuals.

City Council Nears Approval of IGA to Develop Resilient Regional Water Supply, Approves Form-Based Code Standards

During the Feb. 22 Wilsonville City Council meeting, the Council conditionally approved an intergovernmental agreement among Tualatin Valley Water District and the cities of Wilsonville, Hillsboro, Sherwood, Beaverton, and Tigard to form the Willamette Intake Facilities Commission, pending revision of a design issue. The new commission jointly owns, operates and pays for Willamette River water-intake facilities, including the existing Wilsonville intake and a new facility funded by Tualatin Valley Water District and the City of Hillsboro. With this agreement, the City is scheduled to receive more than $17 million in benefits, including seismic upgrades at the Water Treatment Plant and funding of several right-of-way enhancement projects to be performed over the next five years in conjunction with installation of three miles of new water pipeline.

The Council approved on second reading an ordinance adopting new form-based code standards for businesses located in the Coffee Creek Industrial Area. This innovative building code sets clear and objective standards for new development that are designed to allow developers to construct connected, campus-like designs and to facilitate efficient, expedited City review of proposals that provide developers with greater certainty and more flexibility.

The Council approved a two-year tourism promotion marketing plan designed to promote Wilsonville lodging properties and local area tourism attractions to out-of-area visitors. Recommended by the City Tourism Promotion Committee, the objective of the plan is to increase occupancy at Wilsonville hotels, restaurants and attractions. Developed by the City's tourism consultant firm Vertigo Marketing of Bend, the plan seeks to take advantage of Wilsonville's unique proximity to a broad range of regional cities and attractions by promoting a series of day-trips that originate from Wilsonville.

During consent agenda, the Council approved a resolution authorizing the City Manager to execute a contract with Braun Construction & Design for approximately $922,000 to repair, rehabilitate and re-

Making Better Health Choices Can Improve Your Quality of Life

Tualatin Valley Fire & Rescue encourages community members to fight stress and serious illnesses with healthy habits that can improve your overall quality of life.

Consider the following tips for a heart-healthy lifestyle.

- Enlist a partner: Talk to loved ones, neighbors and friends. Invite someone to participate in your physical activities, share a balanced meal, and have a fun adventure. Everyday activities are always more fun with a partner — someone who will keep you company, inspire you to stick with a new routine, and encourage you on your journey to a healthier you.
- Fuel your body: Eating balanced meals helps your body better fight off sickness and recover more quickly when you are sick. Drink plenty of water. Enjoy fruits and vegetables throughout your day as snacks, toppings, side dishes, or in your main meal. A healthy diet also includes whole grains, fat-free or low-fat dairy products, lean meats, fish, beans, eggs, and nuts. Limit the saturated fats, trans fats, cholesterol, salt, and added sugars in your diet.
- Get moving: It's never too late to start being active every day. As little as 30 minutes of exercise a day can help keep your body fit to fight off illness and prevent injury. You can even do simple exercises at home. Consult your physician to see what exercises will benefit you most. Carving out time to exercise has been shown to increase your energy level, reduce health risks, lower stress, improve your mood, and boost your productivity. Regular physical activity is important for your overall health and fitness. It can also be a great source of fun.
- Get enough sleep: Physical activity can improve your quality of sleep. Try to get six to eight hours of sleep each night to re-charge your body.
- Ditch bad habits: Limit your alcohol and caffeine consumption, and quit smoking for good. Set healthy goals for yourself and celebrate when you achieve them.
- Team up with your doctor: Doctors can help you with prevention, screening, and treatment. They can help you prevent health problems or catch them early enough to help you beat them. Don't wait until you are sick to schedule an appointment. Ask your doctor to check your blood pressure and cholesterol numbers. These simple choices, made daily, can improve your odds of fending off serious illness and pave the way to a happier, healthier and longer life. City (Again) Receives Award for Distinguished Budget Presentation

For the 20th consecutive year, the Government Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada (GFOA) has recognized the City of Wilsonville Finance Department with the "Distinguished Budget Presentation Award" for the fiscal year 2017-18 budget document.

Distinguished Budget Presentation Award

Recognition from GFOA reflects the commitment of the City Finance staff to meet the highest principles of governmental budgeting standards. To qualify, a budget document must be rated proficient as a policy document, a financial plan, an operations guide and a communications device; additionally, it must satisfy 14 mandatory criteria within those four categories.

"This award demonstrates the care taken to effectively present and communicate the City's budget to the community," said City Manager Bryan Cosgrove.

The GFOA award recognizes that the City has met or surpassed nationally recognized accounting guidelines for effective budget presentation. A Certificate of Recognition for Budget Presentation was awarded to Finance Director Susan Cole, who guides the process of preparing of the City budget. City employees instrumental in preparing the report are Assistant Finance Director Cathy Rodocker, Finance Operations Manager Keith Katko, Accountant Katie Cook and Administrative Assistant Margie Trader.

The GFOA established the Distinguished Budget Presentation Awards Program in 1984 to encourage and assist state and local governments to prepare budget documents of the very highest quality that reflect both the guidelines established by the National Advisory Council on State and Local Budgeting and the GFOA's best practices on budgeting and then to recognize individual governments that succeed in achieving that goal.

SMART, Kiwanis Providing Volunteer Food Service at Community Center

In dire need of food servers, Wilsonville's Community Center has recruited two new volunteer teams to provide assistance.

Wilsonville's SMART transit system operators are lending a helping hand on the first Tuesday of each month.

This partnership provides a chance for SMART staff to help answer questions that community members may have about riding public transit.

The Wilsonville Kiwanis came forward and volunteered to serve lunches on the fifth Tuesday of the month.

The Community Center depends on volunteers to help maintain this program for area seniors, and is grateful to both organizations for their support.

French Prairie Bridge Task Force Zeroing in on Preferred Bridge Site

The French Prairie Bridge project task force is holding a public meeting at City Hall on Thursday, April 12, to discuss the preferred site location, possible bridge types and updated project timelines.

The proposed French Prairie Bridge would fill a critical gap in Wilsonville's transportation infrastructure, connecting the Portland metro area and the northern portion of the Willamette Valley for cyclists and pedestrians, and providing an alternative to I-5 for emergency vehicles.

Community planners have sought a safe bicycle and pedestrian crossing of the Willamette River for more than two decades. This bridge would provide resident commuters who live south of the river with an alternative to I-5, and also provide new recreation opportunities by connecting the Ice Age Tonquin Trail with the Willamette Valley Scenic Bikeway.

For information, contact Zach Weigel, Capital Projects Engineering Manager, at 503-570-1565, weigel@ci.wilsonville.or.us or visit: FrenchPrairieBridgeProject.org/.

Fifth Street Extension Project Sets Final Public Comment Opportunity

On Tuesday, April 10, 5-6:30 pm at City Hall, the City of Wilsonville is holding an open house to solicit final comment on the proposed 5th Street to Kinsman Road extension.

Project engineers plan to present the 90 percent design level plans for this project, which would extend 5th Street west to intersect with Kinsman Road, which is being extended south from Wilsonville Road. The project also includes extension of the Ice Age Tonquin Trail 2,000 feet to connect with Boones Ferry Road and a re-design of Boones Ferry Road between Bailey Street and 5th Street.

This meeting represents the last opportunity for public comment. Construction is expected to begin this summer; completion of the project is expected in fall 2019.

For more information, contact Steve Adams, Engineering Manager, at 503-570-1566, adams@ci.wilsonville.or.us, or visit the project website, 5thToKinsmanRoad.org.
